Accelerated Weather Testing Results, Roof Makeover Specialist vs Opposition

Chart 1:

Colour Stability: Certified Premium Resin offers substantially better colour stability than leading opposition products in a side by side accelerated weathering test. All of the competitive products were showing noticeable colour change (fading) within the first 7 years equivalent exposure. Two of the opposition products were showing substantial change within the first 3-4 years.

The Certified Premium Resin finish remained stable for up to 15 years equivalent before any colour change could be detected. Even after 21 years equivalent exposure, the Certified Premium Resin was still better than some of the opposition after only 3-4 years exposure.

Gloss Retention: The Certified Premium Resin coating and the leading opposition premium coating both show excellent gloss retention initially. They both exhibit high initial gloss and after around 10 years equivalent exposure, both still retain over 70% of their initial gloss levels. By 15 years equivalent exposure, the Certified Premium Resin is significantly better in gloss retention with over 65% gloss retention while the premium opposition product has started to decline rapidly falling to around 50% gloss retention. The other two opposition products deteriorated very quickly right from the outset losing 70-85% of their initial gloss within the first 7 years.

When you account for the relative cost of the four samples that were evaluated, the Certified Premium Resin coating comes out way in front. Easily the best colour retention / fade resistance and exceptional gloss retention combine to give exceptional value for money and a roof that you can be proud of for years to come.
